MAYOR'S WELCOME

As Mayor of South Dublin County, I am delighted to welcome you to History and Heritage, a wonderful programme of heritage events for summer 2015.

The outdoor events in this programme encourage visitors and locals alike to enjoy the mountains and waterways of South Dublin County, which are within minutes of the centre of Dublin and provide exhilarating and relaxing opportunities to be as active as you want or simply absorb the views. It is easy to enjoy the outdoor recreational activities, stories, music and food, whether in the mountains, along the rivers or canal, or in the small towns and villages.

The events also include talks and exhibitions, craft classes and interactive history workshops for children. There really is something for everyone.

Immerse yourself in the heritage of South Dublin County this summer with this programme of guided heritage walks, village festivals, history talks, workshops and exhibitions.

You don't just visit South Dublin, you experience it in every way!

EXHIBITIONS

Taispeántais

What do our family photographs reveal about our lives?

What do they conceal?

What stories do they tell?

County Library, Tallaght
Month of July
during library opening hours

Photo albums give a fascinating insight into our private histories. They can often reveal details about how people lived and worked that official historical records simply overlook. In a ground-breaking initiative developed by the Gallery of Photography, the Photo Album of Ireland project is digitising and sharing cherished family photographs and private photo collections. This emerging, democratic archive provides an accessible record of our rich photographic social history. It is a celebration of ordinary life as viewed from the perspective of private individuals.

It focuses on the role photography plays in constructing and commemorating our histories. The exhibition invites you to explore the wealth of ordinary and extraordinary photographs – from informal snapshots, studio portraits and ‘official’ photographs through to substantial individual archives. Spanning the entire history of analogue photography, it includes rare ambrotypes and daguerreotypes from the 1850s, Victorian cartes-de-visites, box brownie photographs, family albums, colour instamatic snapshots, polaroids and photobooth selfies from the 1980s.

As part of the Red Line Book Festival, South Dublin County Council and Libraries & Arts will host a History Ireland Hedge School this coming October. Join us for a lively, unfettered debate featuring a panel of four historical experts. Our panel focusing on 1916 will be facilitated by Tommy Graham, editor of History Ireland Magazine and presenter of Talking History on Newstalk radio. Full details will be available soon at www.redlinebookfestival.com

PEARSE MUSEUM

St. Enda's Park, Grange Road,
Rathfarnham, Dublin 16

Tel: 01 4934208

Email: brian.crowley@opw.ie

The Pearse Museum is located in the former home and school of Patrick Pearse, one of the leaders of the 1916 Rising. Originally built in the 18th century, the museum is surrounded by St. Enda's Park, one of the city's most charming and atmospheric parks. In 1910, Pearse opened Scoil Éanna here. He was an innovative educator, and the school played a significant role in the Gaelic Revival. It was also from here that he left, with his brother William, to fight in the Easter Rising of 1916.

The museum's collections consist of documents, photographs, books, art works and other artefacts related to Pearse and his family. Visitors experience St. Enda's as it was in Pearse's time through reconstructions of the rooms where he lived and worked.

The Pearse Museum also hosts an exciting events and exhibition programme. The on-site café is open seven days a week.

Opening arrangements:

March – October

Monday & Wednesday – Saturday

9:30am – 5:00pm

Closed Tuesdays

Guided Tours:

Self-guided. Guided tours are available on request (duration 30 minutes). Admission is free. The museum is wheelchair accessible, with the exception of the Halla Mór.

RATHFARNHAM CASTLE

RE-OPENING
JULY 2015

Rathfarnham, Dublin 14

Tel: 01 4939462 (after 1st July 2015)

Email: rathfarnhamcastle@opw.ie

Visit this fascinating building which dates back to 1583! Rathfarnham Castle was built for Archbishop Adam Loftus, an Englishman who came to Ireland as chaplain to the Lord Deputy. He quickly rose to become Archbishop of Dublin, Lord Chancellor of Ireland and was closely involved in the establishment of Trinity College. The castle, with its four flanker towers is an excellent example of the fortified house in Ireland and recent excavations at the castle have shed new light on the castle and its occupants. In the late 18th century, the castle was remodelled on a splendid scale, employing some of the finest architects of the day, including Sir William Chambers and James 'Athenian' Stuart. The castle collection includes family portraits by Sir Peter Lily (1618-1680), Angelica Kauffman (1741-1807) and Hugh Douglas Hamilton (1740-1808).

The castle also hosts an extensive events and exhibition programme.

Opening arrangements:

May-September – 9:30am -5:30pm daily
Last admission 45 minutes before closing

Guided Tours:

Self-guided. Guided tours on request (duration 45 minutes). Booking essential for groups of 10 or more. Wheelchair accessible.
