

FLANAGAN'S FIELDS: A TALK
BY HISTORIAN CATHY SCUFFIL

Born in Dublin in 1833, Michael Flanagan (1833-1931), was a former city councillor, alderman, and nationalist, father to one well-known Dublin character and father-in-law to another Irish statesman as well as being the city's most successful market gardener. Over the years Flanagan built up a huge, thriving market garden business that at one time included at least 500 acres of prime land in southwest Dublin, stretching from Tallaght to Rialto. Join historian Cathy Scuffil as she explores some of the key events surrounding this gentleman and his life and times.
